

THE BANKERS MEET AT SAINT LOUIS

THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION CONVENES.

Millions of Dollars Represented at the Gathering—Elaborate Plans Made for the Entertainment of the Delegates—To Last Three Days.—The Reports are Submitted.

St. Louis, Sept. 23.—There assembled in the Olympic Theater Tuesday the representatives of more wealth than ever before came together in this city at one time. It was the first session of the twenty-second annual convention of the American Bankers' association. Delegates were present from all parts of the country, representing the most prominent banking institutions, whose capital is at least one billion dollars.

The convention will be in session three days, during which time there will be a general discussion of the reports of the various committees and of matters pertaining to banking. The first day's session was taken up with matters of a routine nature.

Thursday, the last day, officers for the ensuing year will be elected and installed. The remainder of the day will be given up to the discussion of clearing-house questions.

Elaborate arrangements have been made for the reception and entertainment of the visiting bankers. The entire northern portion of the Planters' Hotel parlor floor has been fitted up as the association's convention headquarters. In addition, the St. Louis Noon-day University and the Mercantile, Country and Jockey clubs have been thrown open to the delegates and their wives, the badge of the association entitling the wearer to a membership privilege.

About 200 delegates had assembled at the Olympic Theater at 10 o'clock, the hour set for the convention to open. On the platform were the officers of the association and members of the local committee on arrangements. President E. H. Pullen of New York called the convention to order shortly after 10 o'clock, and Right Rev. Daniel S. Tuttle, Bishop of Missouri, led in prayer. Mayor Cyrus P. Walbridge delivered an address of welcome on behalf of the city of St. Louis. He was followed by W. H. Thompson, president of the St. Louis clearing-house, who welcomed the delegates on behalf of the local bankers. President E. H. Pullen then delivered his annual address.

At the conclusion of Mr. Pullen's address the reports of the executive council and protective committee were read by Chairman Joseph C. Hendrix. The report of the executive council was a declaration in favor of the existing gold standard. The treasurer's report was read by Mr. Hendrix, in the absence of that officer, William H. Porter. It was followed by the report of the auditing committee. E. W. Hayes of Detroit read the report of the committee on express money orders. There was no discussion and adjournment was then had for the day.

Police Unable to Control the Crowds—Many People Injured—Democratic Candidate Scheduled for Seven Speeches in New York—Some Other Popocratic News.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 23.—Mr. Bryan was greeted in Philadelphia Tuesday night by a crowd which, according to the police and other authorities, exceeded any outpouring of the people on a similar occasion in the history of the city. He spoke at the Academy of Music, which has a seating capacity of about 3,000. Every available inch of space in the house and on the stage was occupied two hours before Mr. Bryan arrived, and experts estimated the audience at fully 6,000. Gathered in the streets outside of the Academy were fully 35,000 people, who stood patiently until 10:30 p. m., hoping to see or hear the candidate. The crush was something awful. Many of those who succeeded in getting inside the Academy had their clothing almost torn from them.

Hundreds of policemen were powerless to keep the crowds in check. Mr. Bryan made his headquarters at the Lafayette hotel, two blocks away from the Academy, on Broad street. In front of here over 8,000 persons gathered, desirous of getting at least a glimpse of the distinguished visitor. Since it was not possible for Mr. Bryan to make his way down Broad street to the Academy in his carriage, he was conducted through the basement and kitchen of the hotel and out of the rear to a side street, through which he walked to the Academy. He managed to make his way to the stage entrance, and got inside after an experience with the crowd that he will long remember. When he appeared on the stage his reception was tremendous, the cheering lasting several minutes.

Mr. Bryan did not attempt to speak from the Academy balcony to the crowd in the street after his speech in the opera house, but drove direct to the down-town open-air meeting at Broad and Wharton streets. Here fully 5,000 people were congregated. He arrived at about 10:15 o'clock, but the noise and confusion was so great that he spoke only a few words and then returned to his hotel.

PALMER AND BUCKNER SPEAK.

'Real Democracy' Candidates Hold a Meeting at New York City.

New York, Sept. 23.—There was a large gathering at Madison Square Garden Tuesday, called to ratify the nominations and platform of the Indianapolis convention. The meeting was called to order by Robert E. Windeman, chairman of the Syracuse convention's state committee, who introduced ex-Gov. Flower as the presiding officer.

After a short speech by Mr. Bynum Gen. Palmer and Gen. Buckner ascended the platform. The sight of the two grizzled veterans, remnants of the armies of the north and the south, ascending the platform, created the greatest enthusiasm, and there was a hearty minutes.

When Gen. Palmer was introduced he was received with almost vociferous applause. He said:

"The delegates to the Indianapolis convention were democrats, not republicans or populists. Before the assembling of the Chicago convention they desired and hoped for the unity of that great historic party, and they would have made any ordinary sacrifice in order to maintain that unity, but after they saw the work of that convention they had no further hope, and felt constrained to announce to the country that the declaration of the Chicago convention attacks individual freedom, the right of private contract, the independence of the judiciary and the authority of the president to enforce federal laws. In view of their political heresy and other grave departure from democratic principles, we cannot support the candidates of that convention, nor be bound by its acts."

"The Chicago convention was regularly called and if it had adhered to the faith of the fathers the organization which I represent would have been entirely unnecessary. No democrat can object to the condemnation of the Chicago platform of arbitrary interference by federal authorities in local affairs. It may be that the powers of the courts in the exercises of their authority to punish for contempt need legislative revision. It is true that the power condemned is one which has been framed and exercised by the courts, state and federal, and on many occasions. That power has for its foundation principles that are well understood and the only difficulty is different persons have different views as to the extent to which that power should be applied."

The senator continued in part as follows:

"We invite attention to the fact that the federal legislation named silver and gold together as the money metals in the United States and that the first coinage laws passed by congress under the constitution made the silver dollar the monetary unit and admitted gold to free coinage upon the original basis by the silver dollar unit. This language commends the convention, its candidates and their supporters to the distinct, definite measure of the coinage of the silver dollar of 412½ grains of standard silver with unlimited legal-tender qualities. One of those declarations must be false in principle and is necessarily dangerous to the business and credit of the country. And it is for the democratic party to determine in the approaching election which of these two is to be accepted as a true exposition of party faith. The credits of the United States and of the several states and of the municipalities of the states must be maintained. The people must not be invited to repudiation."

"To thwart these and other disastrous consequences the national democracy invites the co-operation of their brethren and of all the people."

When Gov. Flower introduced Gen. Buckner the scene was almost dramatic. The great soldier of the south was for several minutes unable to begin.

Gen. Buckner said in part: "Mr. Chairman—We are bound to think that Gen. Washington and the continental congress were bolters before the regular proceedings of Benedict Arnold. We in the same way are charged with being bolters, because those to whom we delegated our authority, those democrats to whom we gave our commission to go to Chicago and formulate a platform of democratic principles turned upon the party and sought to destroy it for their own personal emolument. And yet because we refused to follow their direction, because we believe that principles are higher than any form, we are denominated bolters. We will not follow them, whether that be to bolt or not. We follow the principles of democracy and the love of our country, and we will not follow them into the quagmire of populism."

At the conclusion of Gen. Buckner's speech Dr. William Everett of Massachusetts spoke.

Death Was From Natural Causes
—Three Deaths in One Week
Causes a Stir—McKinley and Hobart Cycle Club at Evansville.

Milton Junction, Sept. 22.—Three deaths have stirred Milton Junction in the last week as it has seldom been stirred before. Most sensational, perhaps, was that of Mrs. Lucinda Webb, an elderly woman found dead in bed Saturday morning. The report spread that she had taken her own life, but there was nothing to prove that she had not passed away quietly in her sleep. She had one hundred and eighty dollars in her trunk. Daniel Emerson, a brother, and a brother and sister and sister-in-law, of the late Mrs. Webb, attended her funeral here Monday. They reside near Beloit.

The first of three deaths was that of Mr. Tripple. Mr. Tripple was not considered dangerously ill until an hour before the end. FREE SILVER YARN WAS A BIG FAKE

RECORDER'S CHICKEN COMES HOME TO ROOT.

Story That Thousands of Employees of
The Werner Company of Akron, O.
Were for Bryan and Sewall Denounced as Untrue—Nearly all the Men for McKinley.

Chickens always come home to root.

Some days ago the Recorder printed an item saying that "between 2,500 and 3,000 union men in the factory of the Werner Printing Company, of Akron, Ohio, were free silver men and supporters of Bryan and Sewall."

The Gazette questioned this story, and wrote to George Billow, a prominent Akron man who was known to this company. Here is Mr. Billow's reply:

AKRON, OHIO, SEPT. 18. DEAR SIR:—Yours of the 15th inst., enclosing a clipping from the Daily Recorder, is to hand. The statement in the clipping regarding the Werner Company's employees—"that between 2,500 and 3,000 union hands in their factory were supporters of Bryan and Sewall"—is a base unmitigated falsehood. After reading the said clipping, I called upon P. E. Werner, president of the company, for the real facts and truth in the matter. Fully 95 per cent. of the Werner employees in the large factory here, are hearty supporters of that typical American and champion of protection, Major William McKinley, who not only carried a musket to help save the union and government, but who is now enlisted to assist in the protection and defense of its honor and integrity; and whose best efforts are employed in fostering the prosperity of both the American workingmen and industries for the blessings of peace, happiness and harmony among all our people.

Banners on the Block.

The large Werner factory here is profusely decked with large streamers bearing devices such as:

"When six inches make one foot; when eight ounces make one pound; when one half bushel makes one bushel; then a 16 to 1 free coinage silver dollar, worth 53 cents will make a dollar" and

"No silver country is prosperous."
"No silver country has a staple government."

"No silver country has its securities at par."

"No silver country has good public school facilities."

In fact the appearance of the Werner factory, together with its energetic president, P. E. Werner, who is chairman of the executive committee and chief marshal of the Akron McKinley club of 5,000 members, are become an inspiration to our people for true American principle, harmony and good will between employer and employee and an honest dollar to pay 100 cents the world over.

Predicts Sweeping Victory.

In conclusion, allow me to say that I am an old resident, having served three years in the late war, and am well acquainted with Major McKinley as well as the sentiment entertained by the people for him. It is overwhelmingly in his favor, and will give him the largest majorities where he is best known, having repeatedly carried adverse strongholds by force of his pure American principles, statesmanship and honorable manhood. He is indeed a worthy successor to a Washington, Lincoln and Garfield. Very respectfully,

GEORGE BILLOW.

MCKINLEY DEMOCRATS IN TOWN

Two Traveling Men Who Will Not "Waste
Their Vote."

Two well known democratic traveling men who will now vote for McKinley, were in the city this week and registered at the Grand Hotel. Thomas C. Welsh, of Chicago, was one of the seven hundred democratic traveling men who recently visited Major McKinley's home. M. C. Blade, of the distillery firm of A. Biode & Son, of Milwaukee, is another honest money democrat who will not waste his vote. Mr. Blade says that a large portion of his business is done with the Germans of Wisconsin, and that all of them will vote for sound money and protection.

REGULARS GOING BACK TO FORT.

Uncle Sam's Men Did Not go Beyond Lake
Geneva.

Uncle Sam's troops did not come to Janesville as was first arranged, because of the changes made by the war department. A Lake Geneva dispatch says: "Six companies of the Fifteenth infantry and two troops of cavalry from Fort Sheridan marched into this city this forenoon and went into camp on the outskirts of the city. The cavalry squadron is composed of troops C and G of the First cavalry. Colonel Crofton, who is the commandant at Fort Sheridan, is in command. They marched from Richmond, Ill., today, and will remain here over-night. Previously it was the intention of Colonel Crofton to go from this place to Delavan, but an order for him to go to the New Mexican frontier soon causes him to abandon this idea, and he will break camp here at 7 o'clock in the morning and start on the return march for Fort Sheridan. The command numbers about 400 men."

The regiment has been sent to the far west, and will soon leave the snug Chicago fort for the "cactus and alkali" wastes part in Arizona and New Mexico.

2,000 remnants will be offered at very small figures, small enough to encourage lively buying. It is a splendid opportunity to dress the children at little cost, or get an odd skirt or waist. We will mark the remnants very low, remember, and expect you to be with us Wednesday.

WINTER GARMENTS.

Although it's only September, we have sold a liberal number of CAPES and JACKETS. The new things are represented; many of the most desirable styles we have but one of. A woman can pick out a nobby garment and feel that it will not be common. Many are selecting Capes or Jackets while the stock is so complete.

For misses, for children, we show some beautiful Jackets. They are so new, so different than have ever been shown here.

Quite a number are making small payments on garments and having us keep them for them, and paying the balance in installments as able. In this way one can select a stylish cape or jacket and have it all paid for when winter sets in.

Shot for Disobeying Orders.

The last time a British soldier was shot for disobedience of orders is believed to have been during the month of April, 1860, when a private of the Fifth Bengal regiment was court-martialed and shot for disobeying the orders of a lance corporal by refusing with two others to take a comrade to the guard-room. The one who was shot was on duty at the time.

FIRST FALL AUCTION IS HELD.

Stock Brought Good Prices, Although Horses Sold Very Cheaply

The first "fall auction" in Rock county took place this week and was in charge of Auctioneer W. T. Dooley. The sale was held at the F. C. Monroe farm near Milton. Stock of all kinds brought fairly good prices with the exception of the horses and they "went for a song." The bidding on hogs and cattle was lively, the former bringing on an average of $4.80 a hundred while cattle sold at from $25 to $37 a head.

A motto for working men and women: "A dollar's worth of dollar for a dollar's worth of work."

THIS DAY IN HISTORY.

63 B. C.—Octavius Cæsar, later the Emperor Augustus, born at Aricia. 1650—Dr. Jeremy Collier, noted for lurid sermons of hell and frantic attacks on theaters, was born. 1694—Queen Mary, wife of and joint monarch with William III, died. 1745—John Sevier, pioneer and soldier, hero of Kings Mountain, etc., born in Rockingham county, Va.; died 1815. TREAT THEM ALIKE.

One of the misleading statements often made by silver stump speakers is as follows: "All we ask for silver, is that it shall be admitted to the mints on equal terms with gold. If I have one thousand dollars' worth of gold bullion, I can take it to the mint and have it coined. Why should I not enjoy the same privilege if I happened to have a thousand dollars' worth of silver bullion? Why should my gold be admitted to the mint and my silver shut out?"

This question never fails to elicit loud applause. "That's a clincher—good boy—hit him again."

The answer is nevertheless obvious. If I have one thousand dollars' worth of gold bullion and take it to the mint, the government coins it for me and stamps it $1,000. If I have a thousand dollars' worth of silver bullion and take that to the mint, the government, so long as the ratio remains 16 to 1, coins it and stamps it at the present price of pure silver, $2,000. This is not equality of privileges between the two metals; it is gross partiality and favoritism to silver. The government has no right to do it. It has a right to do it on its own account if having said that a silver dollar shall be equal to a gold dollar, it stands ready to make that guarantee good. It has no right to let any dollar which it has issued, whether of silver or of paper, fall below par. If it does it is guilty of bad faith. It has no right to take fifty cents worth of silver which does not belong to the government, but a private citizen, coin it, stamp it, "one dollar," and give it back to the owner. An irredeemable silver dollar, intrinsically worth only half of its face value is a cheat.

"Why," says the silverite, "it used to do it. All we ask is that the government shall return to its ancient practice." No it never did it. When it coined 371 grains of silver on private account, for the owner, that silver was worth 100 cents in gold. Now it is not. That is the difference, and a great difference, too. The intellectual and moral preceptions of the man who cannot see it must be feeble indeed.

If the proposition in the Chicago platform were to let the owner of a thousand dollars' worth of silver bullion take it to the mint and have it stamped $1,000 the same as the owner of gold bullion has a right to do, there would be none of this

Anxiety and excitement on the part of business men that is everywhere apparent.

It is because the free silver movement contemplates putting a false valuation upon bullion coined for its owners, that economists and financiers regard the Chicago platform as first dishonest and then inexpressibly dangerous to the interests of the whole people, without distinction of class or pecuniary condition.

HAY AND SILVER.

Hay is one of the crops the free silver man argues about. He lays low prices to the demonetization of silver—not to the demonetization of the horse. Electric street cars and the omnipresent bicycle are disregarded by the silver orator. He finds that hay is lower than it was in 1873, and doesn't consider that the crop has increased from 25,085,100 tons in 1873, to 65,766,158 tons, while the number of horses has increased less than sixty per cent.

Nor does he take into account the fluctuations in price during the last twenty years.

In 1887 the average value of the hay crop in the United States was $8.60 per ton. The following year it dropped to $7.20, and in 1879, the year next ensuing, it jumped up to $9.32 per ton.

In 1891, when this country was firmly on a gold basis, the average value of the hay crop was $8.40 per ton. In 1892 it fell to $6.73 per ton, and in 1893 it rose to $8.68 per ton. Last year the average value was $8.56 per ton.

Assuming that the fall in prices is due to the "crime of 1873," how are these fluctuations to be accounted for? Will some Bryanite explain also why it is that the average value of the hay crop per ton was greater in 1895, when we were on a gold basis, than it was in 1878, when gold was at a premium?

Queen Victoria's reign became today the longest in English history. It had been set down years ago as the most peaceful and prosperous. To the wisdom, prudence and personal worth of the venerable sovereign much of the latter-day British devotion to monarchical forms is to be attributed.

Wisconsin may well celebrate Mr. Sawyer's birthday. Prominent in public life for forty years, he has yet to make a mistake, and is a shining example of what good judgment and integrity will accomplish. May it be long before the Oshkosh "birthday parties" are interrupted.

Mr. Worsley, the free silver man who spoke from a wagon in Janesville a few weeks ago, advertises himself as "Fog Horn" Worsley. Fog horns, it is understood, are noted for two things—their emptiness, and the amount of wind that blows through them.

Populists have made formal request for Mr. Sewall's retirement. Mr. Bryan's incessant vocal effort begins to appear in its true light—as a noble effort to divert the candidate's mind from troubles in his "polygamous vice presidential family."

Senator Hill "stands by the ticket but spits upon the platform." A good many democrats are unwilling to come near enough the platform for that, even.

"If we go down let us go down with our colors in sight," said Senator Hill. The rest of his speech satisfies us that the senator really meant "collars."

THAT DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

[Belot Free Press.] Rock county voted as a "unit" for Mahoney. And the vote stood Mahoney, 21, Metzker, 12.

As a eulogist of 1896 democracy, Billy Smith is no slouch.

And the First district democratic congressional convention was held in the opera house at Beloit.

The only perfect democratic platform ever constructed, is the one of 1896—according to Billy Smith.

What Billy Smith lacks is a little—just a drop or two—of the milk of human kindness in his make up.

The Silver convention, consisting of one man, enthusiastically endorsed the popocratic nomination of J. L. Mahoney.

That "old wheel horse" of free silver, ex-Congressman Clinton Babbitt, was unable to be present at the popocratic convention this afternoon.

The applause that followed Wilson Lane's laudation of Altgeld this afternoon was right hearty, apparently touching a warm spot in the hearts of the fraudulent money lovers. And why shouldn't it?

The silver party convention! And there are supposedly intelligent men in this city who uphold the farce of a one-man convention. How such old line democrats as Billy Smith and Pete Mount will laugh when they get off behind a barn by themselves.

OLD AND NEW IDEAS.
THE OLD WAY. THE NEW WAY.

In above Flue Construction there are Four Surfaces Radiating Heat.

In above Flue Construction there are NINE Surfaces Radiating Heat, Increasing the Heating Capacity with the same amount of fuel.

Above cut illustrates the arrangement of Bottom Flues in nearly all base burners, showing the Heat is not Equally Distributed.

The above Bottom Flue Construction causes the Heat to go to the Outer Surfaces, Largely increasing the Heating Capacity and Economizing in Fuel.

The "Favorite" Base Burner has More Heating Capacity and is the Most Economical Stove ever made. Why? Because it has about 1/2 more Radiating Surface as compared with same sizes of other base burners, and is Mounted and Fitted Perfectly.

THOMAS WHITE GETS A GOODLY WINDFALL

TOWN OF PORTER MAN'S LEGACY PAID AT LAST.

Because of His Father's Death $500 Was Due Him From the Government—Alderman Heddles Finds Him and Tells Him of His Good Fortune—White Astonished.

Thomas White, a prosperous farmer in the town of Porter, knows how it feels to "find money."

Mr. White was in the city today and took home with him the sum of $533, which came to him because of his father's service in the army during the war.

Receiving the cash was a great surprise to him.

Mr. White was one of a large family. Twenty years ago they resided in Southern Indiana and at the breaking out of the war White's father enlisted and soon after his enlistment he was killed. Then the boys had to "hustle for themselves," and Thomas soon found his way into Wisconsin and located in Rock County. By the passing of the new pension law, the children became entitled to a certain sum each because of their father's death. The Indiana heirs received their "back money" and Attorney C. E. Milroy, of Delphi, Ind., wrote to Sheriff Appleby a short time ago to see if he could locate Thomas. The letter said that the latter was "in the tobacco business in Rock county." Sheriff Appleby turned the matter over to Alderman S. B. Heddles, who after a three weeks hunt, through the county and after considerable correspondence finally discovered Mr. White in the town of Porter near Evansville. Mr. White, on receiving his money today said that it was just like finding it and a more pleased man it would be hard to find.

Mr. Heddles had worked hard to find Mr. White, a fact that Mr. White also realizes.

Local Delegation Gave a Pleasing Concert For the Inmates.

Twenty members of the Presbyterian Christian Endeavor Society left last evening for a "hay rack ride" to the county buildings, where they spent two hours entertaining the inmates with a concert. The party was in charge of William White. The ride and concert proved to be a most enjoyable affair. Those who took the trip were:

Dr. Halsey was thanked for his faithful service and urged to remain thus showing the esteem in which he was held by his congregation.

A MINISTER CALLS AT ALL SALOONS

REV. V. E. SOUTHWORTH INTERVIEWS THE KEEPERS.

Noisel Trip Made In Securing Data For a Sermon on the Evils of the Liquor Traffic—Most of Proprietors Received Him Politely And Talked Freely.

Rev. V. E. Southworth has just finished an experiment that no Janesville minister has ever before tried. He has made a personal round of the saloons, visiting over half of the forty-seven establishments in the city. He went to secure data for a sermon on saloon keeping to be preached next Sunday, and to invite the liquor men to attend.

"Any of us can tell what we believe to be the worst thing about the business," said Mr. Southworth to the saloonists. "What I want you to do is to tell me the very best thing you can say about the business."

The answers he got varied. "One thing that struck me," said Mr. Southworth to a Gazette reporter, "was that no saloon man made any pretense of knowing a really good thing to be said about the business. There may be plenty of justification for liquor drinking but there seems to be no doubt that of all methods that of liquor dispensing the American saloon is the worst."

Mr. Southworth was cordially received by each of the men he visited. Two of them grew somewhat excited in manner when the subject of his interview was broached and one said:

"I have $500 in this thing and if I can't get it out one way I will another."

Most of the liquor men promised they would attend the service if they could make it convenient.

SOLD $1,500 WORTH IN A DAY

Gazette Advertising Did Wonders For Becker & Woodruff's Shoe Sale.

A wonderful record in the shoe trade and a remarkable testimonial to Gazette advertising.

That was the way observers sized up the first day of the Becker & Woodruff sale.

Not until Saturday evening was the sale announced.

There was a column advertisement and a few lines of local in The Gazette.

It was intended that the sale open Monday morning, but the people couldn't wait until Monday, after reading Saturday evening's Gazette. They made a rush for the store and a crowd such as never before thronged a sale filled the place to the sidewalk to secure the bargains offered, nor was the slightest let up until midnight.

Monday saw a repetition of Saturday evening's crowd, and when the last person left the store at night it was found that he unheard of amount of $1,500 worth of shoes had been disposed of during that day. No other paper than The Gazette was used in announcing the sale and the returns exceeded all expectations.

D. E. THORPE NAMED BY THE DEMOCRATS

ASSEMBLY CONVENTION WAS HELD TODAY.

Several of the Towns Were Not Represented—Candidate Van Wart Would Not Work or Spend any Money, He Said—Informal Ballot Settles It.

For Assemblyman.....D. E. THORPE They called it an assembly convention of the Second assembly district, but no delegates from Bradford, Center, Evansville, Johnstown or Union were present. The convention met in the court house at 2 p. m., and Claude Hendricks, of Porter, was named as chairman, and F. G. Borden, of Milton, as secretary.

D. E. Thorpe, William Zuill, Arthur Broughton and David Van Wart were proposed for the nomination. Mr. Van Wart arose to make an explanation. He wanted it understood that if he were nominated, he would not do any work and not spend any money. He didn't believe anybody could work for his own election without being tempted to sell himself to the railroad companies if he succeeded. Members of the legislature were too prone to send themselves and their friends about the state on passes. The informal ballot resulted: Thorpe, 19; Zuill, 5; Van Wart, 2; Broughton, 2. The ballot was declared formal, and Mr. Thorpe was declared nominated.

The assembly committee of Messrs. Thorpe, Ellingson and Broughton, were reappointed for the ensuing two years.

Have you, also, found it hard to conscientiously subscribe to the dogmatic formulations of the churches? If so, let Abraham Lincoln's statement of what he would do, if he found the right kind of church, have weight with you. (See this space tomorrow evening.)

A LOVE POEM.

"Your boy is a thief,"
They solemnly said,
To a dear little mother one day—
"Your boy is a thief."
We have found it out;
He has stolen our hearts away.
"Such quaint little tales,
Such droll little ways,
And such merry, childish play
Have made us forget
We are old and worn
And have stolen our hearts away."
"My boy is so sweet,
So good and so true,
Said the dear little mother that day,
"I am glad he is rich
In the best of best things
And has stolen your hearts away."
—Katharine B. Walker in Boston Globe.

WIDOW AND MAID.

Coming out of her son's sickroom, Mrs. Thomas met Bob Hilliard on his way down to breakfast.

"The doctor just went out, didn't he?" queried the young man as he reached the landing on which she was standing. "I thought I heard him. How is Tom this morning? Any better?"

She sat down in a big armchair standing by the window, laid her head on the window sill and burst into tears.

"It isn't as bad as that, is it?" he finally asked. "The doctor has not given him up altogether, has he?"

She raised herself up and wiped away the tears from her eyes.

"There is little hope, Bob. He didn't say so in so many words. He meant to be hopeful, but he failed."

"I suppose he is still delirious?"

"Yes. He is as bad as ever. He still keeps up that monotonous cry of 'Mary, Mary.' It is so curious when no one except himself knows who Mary is. Oh, Bob, if he should die without recognizing me! That is the hardest part of it all. He cannot last much longer unless a change comes for the better."

Bob turned toward the window and looked out on the square, with its great trees almost stripped of their autumnal splendor.

"Something has got to be done," he said half excitedly. "He can't die. He is too good a fellow, too bright a fellow, the kind of man the world needs most."

"But what?" Mrs. Thomas asked hopelessly. "The doctor has done everything that he could do, and we couldn't have done more."

Bob walked down the hall to the door of the room in which the sick man lay, and put his hand on the knob. Then he turned quickly and came back to the window, and the little figure in black crouched in the big armchair.

"Tom is delirious. We don't want him delirious. That is the point, Mrs. Thomas, isn't it?" said Bob.

Mrs. Thomas nodded her head. "If the delirium passed away, he would sleep?"

"Yes."

"Well, that's it. He has got to sleep soundly."

"Did you ever hear of cases where the presence of one particular person in a sickroom exerted a great influence over a delirious person?"

"I might have, Bob; but I never knew any one who did it."

"Tom wants Mary," the young man went on, "and perhaps if she came to him she might save his life. I think it is worth trying; at any rate, it cannot do any harm."

"But who is Mary? You told me that you did not know."

"Yes, I know I did; I don't know for a certainty, but I think I could pick her out in a crowd. Tom never told me her name, but he told me a good deal about her. Putting one thing and another together, I think I may venture to say who Mary is."

"And who is she, Bob?"

"She is the unattainable, as Tom called her. She is wealthy, she is beautiful and she is said to be good. She is a leader in her set, and has as many young men running after her as she probably finds convenient. Her father is the chairman of the Great Southern Railway company, in whose employ Tom and I are fortunate enough to be."

"Mary Summerhayes! Why, she would never come here! It is almost ridiculous suggesting such a thing. You don't know her, do you?"

"I'm sorry to say that I don't. You see I am hardly in her set. Tom has met her, though. He was sent up to the chairman's house one day with some papers requiring Mr. Summerhayes' signature. He had to wait about half an hour, and during that interval Miss Summerhayes, who had found him greatly interested in a picture in the drawing room, showed him her father's collection. When Tom came home that night he told me about it. He started to tell me about the pictures, but when he had finished I found that I had heard a great deal about Miss Summerhayes and very little about the pictures."

"And is that the extent of his acquaintance with her?"

"I believe she bowed to him in the street one day afterward."

"She never would come here, Bob. The idea of asking her is absolutely ridiculous."

"It does seem that," assented Bob reluctantly. "But there does not appear to be any other way out of it."

"You don't understand it, Bob. She is a young woman, not one whose age would allow her to visit the bedside of a strange young man. You don't realize the position it would place her in."

"Perhaps not. When her father's office boy was sick, she visited him and carried him fruit and flowers, though."

"Yes, but he was only a boy. Tom is a young man, and that makes a great deal of difference."

"I dare say it does. Still, this is a matter of life or death, and she might come if you put it to her in that light."

"But I can't ask her, Bob."

"You must. He is your only son, and he is dying."

The little woman burst into tears again.

"Come, don't cry," he said tenderly.

"I didn't mean to put it so brutally. I only wanted you to see it plainly."

"But I can't ask her. I haven't the courage."

"If she comes at all, it will be only because you, as his mother, asked it. She will do it out of sympathy with you, if she does it at all. It will be on the impulse of the moment. She won't stop to consider the impropriety of the thing. I couldn't create an impulse. We have got to lead trumps and play trumps all the time. If she won't come for you, she won't come at all."

He stopped and looked at her anxiously.

"Oh, I can't, Bob. It is such an awful thing to do."

The catch on the door of the sick man's room accidentally gave way, and the door swung slightly ajar. The nurse inside quickly closed it, but not before a plaintive cry of "Mary" had reached the two people in the hall.

"Well?" he said sententially.

"I'll go, Bob. It will not be of the slightest use, but drowning people always clutch at straws."

"That's right," he exclaimed. "Get on your best clothes. It's a little early for a morning call, but the servants of people of the standing of the Summerhayes are more easily impressed by good clothes than they are by anything else. I'll have a cab at the door for you when you are ready."

Miss Mary Summerhayes sat in the armchair by the window of the hall and wondered why she had allowed herself to openly rebel against the social conventionalities so carefully drilled into her. She had endeavored to convince herself that she had come simply for the mother's sake, but somehow the conviction did not seem perfectly honest. An attempt to blame it on her impulsiveness resulted in an even greater failure. She grew half angry with herself, and once she arose from her chair with the intention of seeking safety in flight. But she sank back into the chair, for the reason that urged her to flight also chained her to the spot. Then she determined to face it bravely and found a great sweetness and content growing upon her. But even as it grew a fear replaced it, and all life seemed to go out of her body, for she remembered that his mother had said that he was dying.

When Mrs. Thomas came out of the sickroom, she found the girl weeping. She sat down on the arm of the chair and drew her toward her and comforted her.

"I am afraid you are somewhat upset," she said. "I am almost sorry I asked you to come. It is so good of you."

The girl dried away the tears from her eyes.

"I am a little hysterical, I think," she said. "But I am glad I am here if I can do anything to help you. Do you want me to go in now?"

"Do you feel strong enough?"

"Oh, yes; I am all right now. It was only a momentary weakness. Is he still delirious?"

"Just the same."

"There is no one else there?"

"No. I sent the nurse away for a little sleep."

"You will come in with me," she said as she opened the door.

The room was darkened, and the young girl stood in the doorway for an instant, accustoming her eyes to the dim light.

"Mary, Mary!" called the sick man as she stood there, and the mother, with her hand on the young girl's shoulder, felt a shudder run through her body. She led her to the bed, beside which a chair stood. Miss Summerhayes sat down and gazed at the pale face lying on the pillow. She placed one hand on the hot, fevered forehead and with the other took one of his.

"Mary has come," she said in a low voice, stroking his forehead and brushing back his hair.

After a few minutes the patient gave a little gasp of relief. She sat there for ten minutes longer, and only once did he again cry out "Mary!" and then the cry had changed from one of entreaty to content. In a few minutes his breathing showed that he was asleep, and the girl, bending over him, kissed him lightly on the forehead, disengaged her hand from his and arose from her chair.

"Take me away," she entreated as she fell into his mother's arms.

A week later Mary Summerhayes told her mother of her early visit to the house in the square. There were tears in her eyes.

"It does not matter now, mother. He is dead. Dead, and he never knew how much I loved him. He was conscious just before he died, and he whispered to his mother, 'tell her, mother, if you see her, that I loved her.' He died soon afterward. I saw his death in the newspapers—you remember the evening the Fergusons were here and I had that severe headache. It was a heartache, and I did not come down. The next day I went to see his mother, and she told me how he died, and we cried together over it."

"But, Mary, you surely did not love the poor fellow? Why, you had scarcely seen him before!"

"I feel that I shall never be able to love any one else in the same way, mother."

"But Mr. Roanoke, Mary. You will never have another chance to marry so advantageously."

"I like Mr. Roanoke very well—as a friend. I respect him too much to marry him. Then, you know, he has a terrible prejudice against widows," she continued with a light touch of her usual lively manner, and, in lapsing again into intense seriousness, "I am a widow, though a maid."—Exchange.

One reason why women are so generally troubled with some derangement of the distinctly feminine organism is that as girls they learn nothing about their own physical make up. Parents are waking up to the importance of education of this kind, and young women are becoming more and more able to take care of their health.

Carelessness in girlhood causes the greatest suffering and unhappiness in after life. Little irregularities and weaknesses in girls should be looked after promptly and treatment given at once. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription promotes regularity of all feminine functions, makes strength and builds up a sturdy health with which to meet the trials to come. The "Favorite Prescription" is not a universal panacea. It is good for but one thing. It is directed solely at one set of organs.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a 1008 page medical work, profusely illustrated, will be sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to cover postage only. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

GOWNS FOR DEMISEASON.

Braided Gowns—Sailor Costumes For Girls and Children.

A number of tailor made costumes are seen for the demiseason; also skirts of gray, violet, green, beige or sable cloth, worn with a corsage of silk or batiste, with insertion of beading or lace and a decoration of narrow velvet ribbon, mauve, rose, black or green. Braided costumes of mohair are also seen. For more elaborate wear are costumes of foulard adorned with lace, guipure or ruffles of batiste, fleecy fichus, clouds of embroidered tulle and all varieties of belts, corselets and boleros that can be imagined. Very young ladies and half grown girls who are wise enough to prefer the simplicity of youth while it is possible for them remain faithful to the sailor style of costume for morning and outing wear, a dark blue gown, with a wide collar of white linen or silk, and narrow white braid sewed flat on the skirt. Small children, both boys and girls, also wear sailor costumes of all varieties, while for babies and very little girls there are gowns of embroidered muslin, linen and white or very light silk, with white trimmings and collars, yokes and ruffles of white. The bonnets are large and are of gauze or batiste.

Green continues to stand high in fashionable esteem, and is seen in many shades, bright and decided ones being preferred. Violet, both dark and light, also holds its own perseveringly, and green and violet together have a decided vogue.

Although sleeves have diminished in size perceptibly, they require no less material unless the goods are so heavy as to admit of no fanciful treatment. The drapey at the top is usually very elaborate and takes up a large amount of goods, while for thin material the close part of the sleeve is plaited, gathered, puffed and shirred for its full length.

A sketch is given of a costume of rose and yellow glace poplin. The skirt is open at each side of the foot of the tablier, the opening being filled by coquilles of white lace mixed with old rose changeable ribbon and fastened by antique gold buttons. The bodice of poplin is cut out in front and edged with ribbons held in place by gold buttons. From the open space escapes a full vest of lace. The bouffant portion of the tight sleeve is draped and trimmed with ribbons, lace and gold buttons, and a frill of lace falls from the wrists, held by a bow and button. There are an old rose collar and a cravat of white gauze.

OUTING FASHIONS.

Tweed and Serge Suits—Traveling Capes to Match the Gown.

Now that athletics are fashionable there is a great demand for becoming and serviceable gowns for out of door wear which shall have no unnecessary frippery about them, but shall yet be natty and satisfactory. Tweed is a favorite material for suits intended for golfing, bicycling and mountain climbing exploits. The skirt is cut more or less short, the bodice is often of the Norfolk order, belted, with a basque, and the proper finish for the costume is a Tam O'Shanter cap of the same material.

Serge is also, as usual, greatly employed for outing gowns, especially for boating and yachting, navy blue, white and red being the preferred colors. They are trimmed sometimes with silk, sometimes with fancy braid, the latter being the more useful. A serge skirt often accompanies a silk bodice. These bodices are fitted with a point back and front or are made like a short jacket or in the blouse form. In almost all cases, however, there are a wide collar with points and a fancy vest. The corners of the collar are ornamented with embroidered emblems, the anchor being the favorite.

Capes are being much worn for traveling. They have an inside pocket and a storm collar that may be turned up or down at pleasure. Tweeds, heavy serges and cloth are the materials employed, and the cape should preferably be made to match the gown. Speaking of traveling, there are innumerable recipes for the avoidance of seasickness, none of which appears to be successful when practically tested. One of the newest prescriptions advises that the corset be laced very tightly at the first symptom of illness. If this is really a preventive, what a pity it is that only half of humanity can be benefited by it! For, of course, men are debarred from any such assistance, as they never wear the garment!

The illustration shows one of the new long redingotes. It is of iron gray cloth and is tight fitting, closing in the middle of the front. The top of the side seams at the back is closed by two short stitched straps of cloth held by buttons, and two similar straps are placed at the waist in front. The cape is cut in sections, each breadth being outlined by a steel cord. The ornamentation consists of short straps, like those on the body of the garment, the straps being edged with cord and fastened with steel buttons.

ON THE BRIDGE.

THE SOUTH AFRICAN LONDON.

Life in the Center of the Famous Gold-Mining Region.

Johannesburg, the London of South Africa, nine years ago a barren veldt and eight years ago a miners' camp, is now the center of some 100,000 inhabitants and increasing about as fast as brick and mortar can be obtained, says a writer in Chambers' Journal. It is situated directly on top of the gold, and on looking down from the high ground above it looks to an English eye like a huge drawn-out mass of tin sheds with their painted mine chimneys running in a straight line all along the quartz gold reef as far as you can see in either direction. The largest, or main reef, runs for thirty miles uninterruptedly, gold-bearing and honeycombed with mines throughout. This, even were it alone, could speak for the stability and continuous prosperity of the Transvaal gold trade. On a small steamer arriving only a few days ago from the cape was said to be between £300,000 and £400,000 worth of gold, and the newspapers show that usually about £100,000 worth is consigned by each mail boat.

As we enter the town we find fine and well-planned streets, crossed at places with deep gutters—gullies, rather—to carry off the water, which is often, in the heavy summer rains, deeper than your knees. Crossing these at a fast trot, the driver never drawing rein, the novice is shot about in his white-covered, two-wheeled cab, with its large springs, like a pea in a bladder. Indeed, one marvels at the daintily dressed habitue of the place being swung through similarly, quite unconcerned and without rumpling a frill. We pass fine public buildings, very high houses and shops, somewhat jerky-built, it is true, and goodness help them in case of a large street fire—but now being added to or replaced by larger and more solid buildings. Indeed, bricks cannot be made fast enough to supply the demand, both here and in some of the outlying Transvaal towns where the gold boom is on. There are lofty and handsome shops with most costly contents which can vie with London or Paris.

Big Odd Fellows' Parade.

Dallas, Texas, Sept. 22.—The second day's session of the sovereign grand lodge of Odd Fellows was opened Tuesday with the biggest parade ever seen in Texas. It was over two miles long. The 5,000 Odd Fellows and Daughters of Rebekah who were in line, in carriages, on floats or afoot, were viewed by nearly 50,000 people along the line of march. Every available vehicle in the city was in use and private carriages had to be used to convey the grand representatives and officers. The parade started at 10 o'clock.

THE CELEBRATED
ORR PANTALON OVERALL
WARRANTED NEVER TO RIP.

Stranger—"What does the above picture represent?"

Mechanic—"These men are testing the strength of the famous ORR PANTALON OVERALLS, manufactured by SWEET, ORR & Co., which is guaranteed by them to be so strongly sewed that three times as many men could not pull them apart."

Stranger—"This is wonderful! What other merits has the garment?"

Mechanic—"Well, I have been wearing this Overall for many years, and it is the only one I have ever seen which always fits perfectly about the hips and gives plenty of seat room, to that no binding is felt by the wearer, no matter what position he may assume. You will notice, also, that these Overalls are double sewed all through, both on the outside and on the inside leg seams, and this is a point to be particularly noticed. Thus, you will see, it is impossible for these Overalls to rip, and the manufacturers can well guarantee them, which they do, Never to Rip."

Stranger—"What further?"

Mechanic—"Observe the buttons. You may be sure that your wife will never be called upon to sew them on again. Also SWEET, ORR & Co. never use any seconds in their goods, but always the first quality, so that a thousand pair or a hundred thousand always run exactly like one pair."

Stranger—"I suppose there are imitation goods in the market?"

Mechanic—"You may be sure of that, so you must always look for the button and see that SWEET, ORR & Co. is stamped upon it."

Stranger—"Are there any other kinds of goods manufactured by this firm?"

Mechanic—"I should say so; why, they make the best cottonade pants, jean pants, wool and corduroy pants, and working shirts ever offered to the working-man. There is no fifteen-dollar pair of pants better finished than the Cottonade and Jean Pants manufactured by this firm and retailed by the trade at $1 50 and $2.00.
